Walk lasted between 12:00 and 13:54

It was cold and slightly raining when we started, but that cleared up pretty soon to just overcast. Lots of rain came later. We underperformed, but we were up against a prediction of 27.5, for goodness sakes. We observed 24 species, which was two above the median, so not so bad. I'd say our highlight birds were the Cedar Waxwings, the Red-crowned Parrots, and the California Scrub-Jay, none of which we have seen for a while. Hopefully a little warmer and drier next week.
