- 3 Mallard
- 3 Townsend's Warbler
- 1 Red-tailed Hawk
- 2 Bewick's Wren
- 1 Cooper's Hawk
- 2 Hummingbird, Selasphorus

25 species is not bad, well above the median of 19 for week 10, but also well below the record high for the week of 32. The Snowy Egret was back for a second week in a row, so that was good. We had a good warbler turnout but we lamented not seeing the Cedar Waxwings, the Western Bluebirds, and the American Robin, all of which we saw the previous week. Could be a rainy week ahead, but let's hope Wednesday is clear enough to walk. My trip next week has been cancelled, so I expect to be on the walk on Wednesday.
