Walk lasted between 12:00 and 14:02

We had a new walker, Jim Zumberge, who used to be a graduate student in my same group many years ago. He has worked at JPL for a long time and is semi-retired. As is often the case, a new walker brings a little extra luck, as we saw the Oak Titmouse, a fairly unusual sighting. So, thanks Jim. We wound up 3 short of the record for the week and 7 above the median, so it was a good walk. Next week we have the record number of candidates for the year with greater than zero probability, so that should be a good walk too.
