We set the record for a week 32 and we broke the old record by 2 species! So, it was a very good walk indeed. There were three sightings that had a zero probability, i.e., not seen this week for the last 7 years: Cooper's Hawk, Mallard, and Ash-throated Flycatcher. The Rock Pigeon was the 1st bird added to the list and it was only 14% probable, so we were lucky on that one. Next week the record is 24, so that's going to be tough to beat. But, we'll try.
